1. During the first part of August 1951, the branch office in Breslau (P 52/C 47) Seed-growing Administration received a directive from [REDACTED] (District) Administration which specified the categories to be classified as indispensable in case of mobilization. The directive was published in the fall of 1950 by the Ministry of National Defense on orders of the Minister of National Defense. It decreed that all managements were to compile lists of personnel indispensable in case of mobilization and forward them to the proper ministries through the Voivode district administrations by 15 August 1951. The lists were [REDACTED] the managers and those skilled workers who were absolutely [REDACTED]. Conscriptions for Armed Forces and Labor Service.

2. In August 1951, a municipal employee in the Breslau district stated that preparations for the induction of the 1931 class in September 1951 were being made. The discharge of the 1928 class was expected to take place at the same time. The 1932 through 1934 classes had been registered for the draft by the military offices of municipal administrations in the spring of 1951. * The 1934 class and contingents of the 1935 class were subject to induction into the Polish Labor Service. Those subject to labor service who came from rural areas were inducted during the winter months and those coming from towns and cities during the summer months. The labor service term usually was three months, but could be extended. The informant stated that the High Command of Polish Labor Service was located at the intersection of Al. Wyzwolenia and Al. Niepodleglosci, Warsaw, near the building of the Army High Command.
3. Between 16 and 20 August 1951, while traveling to various towns in the west of Polish-occupied Germany, source observed the assignment of volunteers for officer candidate schools of all branches of service, who assembled at railroad stations and subsequently [REDACTED] special coaches attached to [REDACTED]

4. Source learned in July 1951 that a Pole who lived in Pruszkow (R 53/P 88) and had reached the age of 21 in 1951 was directed to report to a technical officer candidate school in or near Warsaw. The inductee, who had passed the final examination at a first-grade secondary school and subsequently attended a three-year course in radio and telecommunications engineering in Warsaw, had not applied for enrollment into an officer candidate school.

- * ☐ Comment. According to previous information, the 1928 class is due for discharge in the fall of 1951. Most of its members were inducted in the fall of 1949 and thus would serve a full two-year term. With the draft age reduced to 20, the 1931 class is due for induction in the fall of 1951. Following the discharge and induction process, the majority of the 1929 and 1930 classes and the newly inducted recruits of the 1931 class will be in active service.
